

Lynn Cline Video Interview

Introduction

My name is Lynn Cline, I retired from NASA two years ago after a 36 year career there. I started out in the International Relations Office, and that included negotiating international agreements. The key one for me was bringing Russia into the International Space Station program. And then the last eight years of my career I was in Human Spaceflight, and there it was overseeing the program management that included the Space Station.