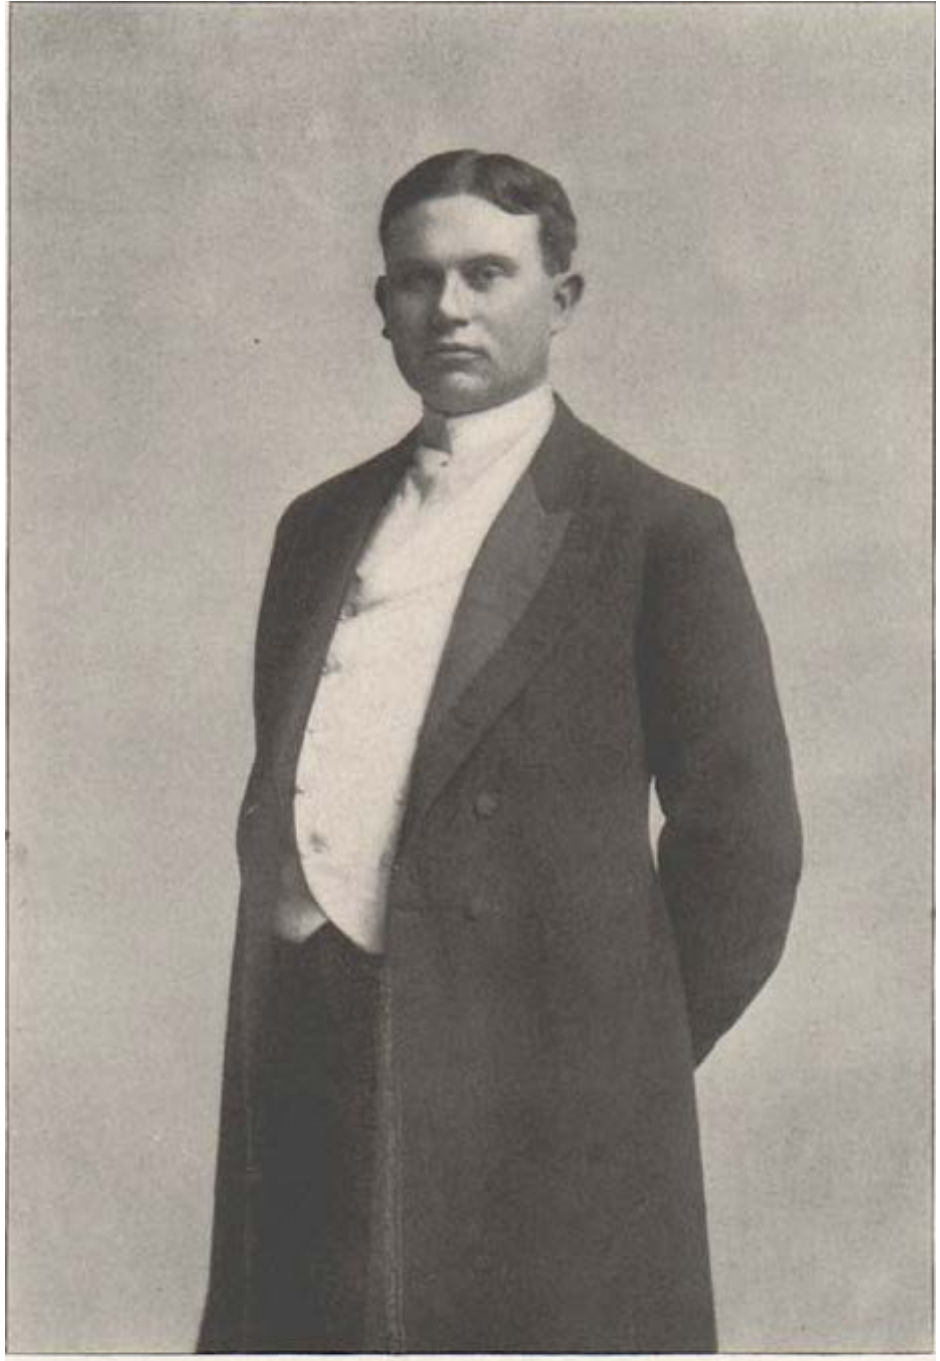
The NACA at Lewis Laboratory, a Legacy of Ohioans Solving the Problem of Flight

by Shannon Bohle

(Image credit: NASA).

The NACA Centenary: A Symposium on 100 Years of Aerospace Research and Development
Moving Beyond Earth Gallery, National Air and Space Museum
Independence Avenue, Washington DC
Wednesday, March 4, 2015



BYRON R. NEWTON.

(Image credit:
J. B. Lyon Company,
State Printers, 1902.
Courtesy of the library at SUNY-Buffalo).

(Image credit: NASA).

NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE FOR AERONAUTICS
U.S.A.

(Image courtesy of Wright State University).

NACA

1915

Brig. Gen. George P. Scriven, USA
Chief Signal Officer
Member 1915–17
Chairman 1915–16

Joseph S. Ames
Johns Hopkins University
Member 1915–39
Chairman Executive Committee 1919–37
Chairman 1927–39

Rear Adm. Mark L. Bristol, USN
Member 1915–16

William F. Durand
Stanford University
Member 1915–32; 1941–45
Chairman 1916–18

John F. Hayford
Northwestern University
Member 1915–23

Charles F. Marvin
Chief, Weather Bureau
Member 1915–34

Byron R. Newton
Assistant Secretary, Treasury
Member 1915–18

Michael I. Pupin
Columbia University
Member 1915–22

Lt. Col. Samuel Reber, USA
In Charge Av. Sec. Signal Corps
Member 1915–18

Lt. Holden C. Richardson, USN
Naval Constructor
Member 1915–17
Secretary 1915–18

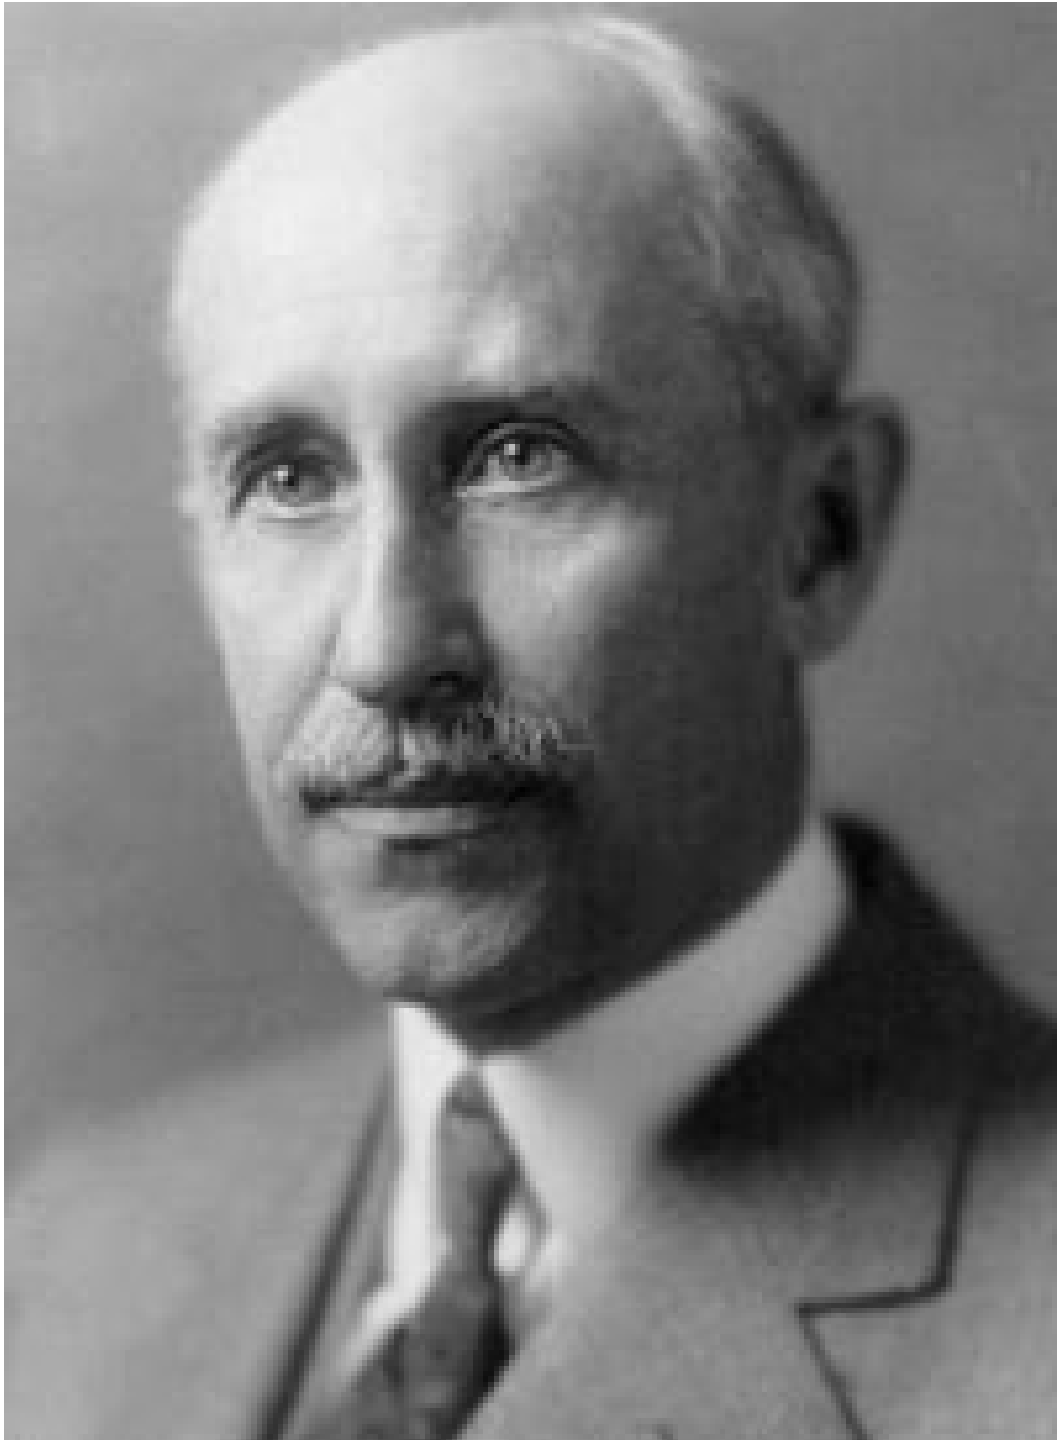
Samuel W. Stratton
Director, Bureau of Standards
Member 1915–35
Secretary 1915–23

Charles D. Walcott
Secretary, Smithsonian Institution
Member 1915–27
Chairman Executive Committee 1915–19
Chairman 1919–27

ORIGINAL COMMITTEE MEMBERSHIP

(Image credit: NASA).

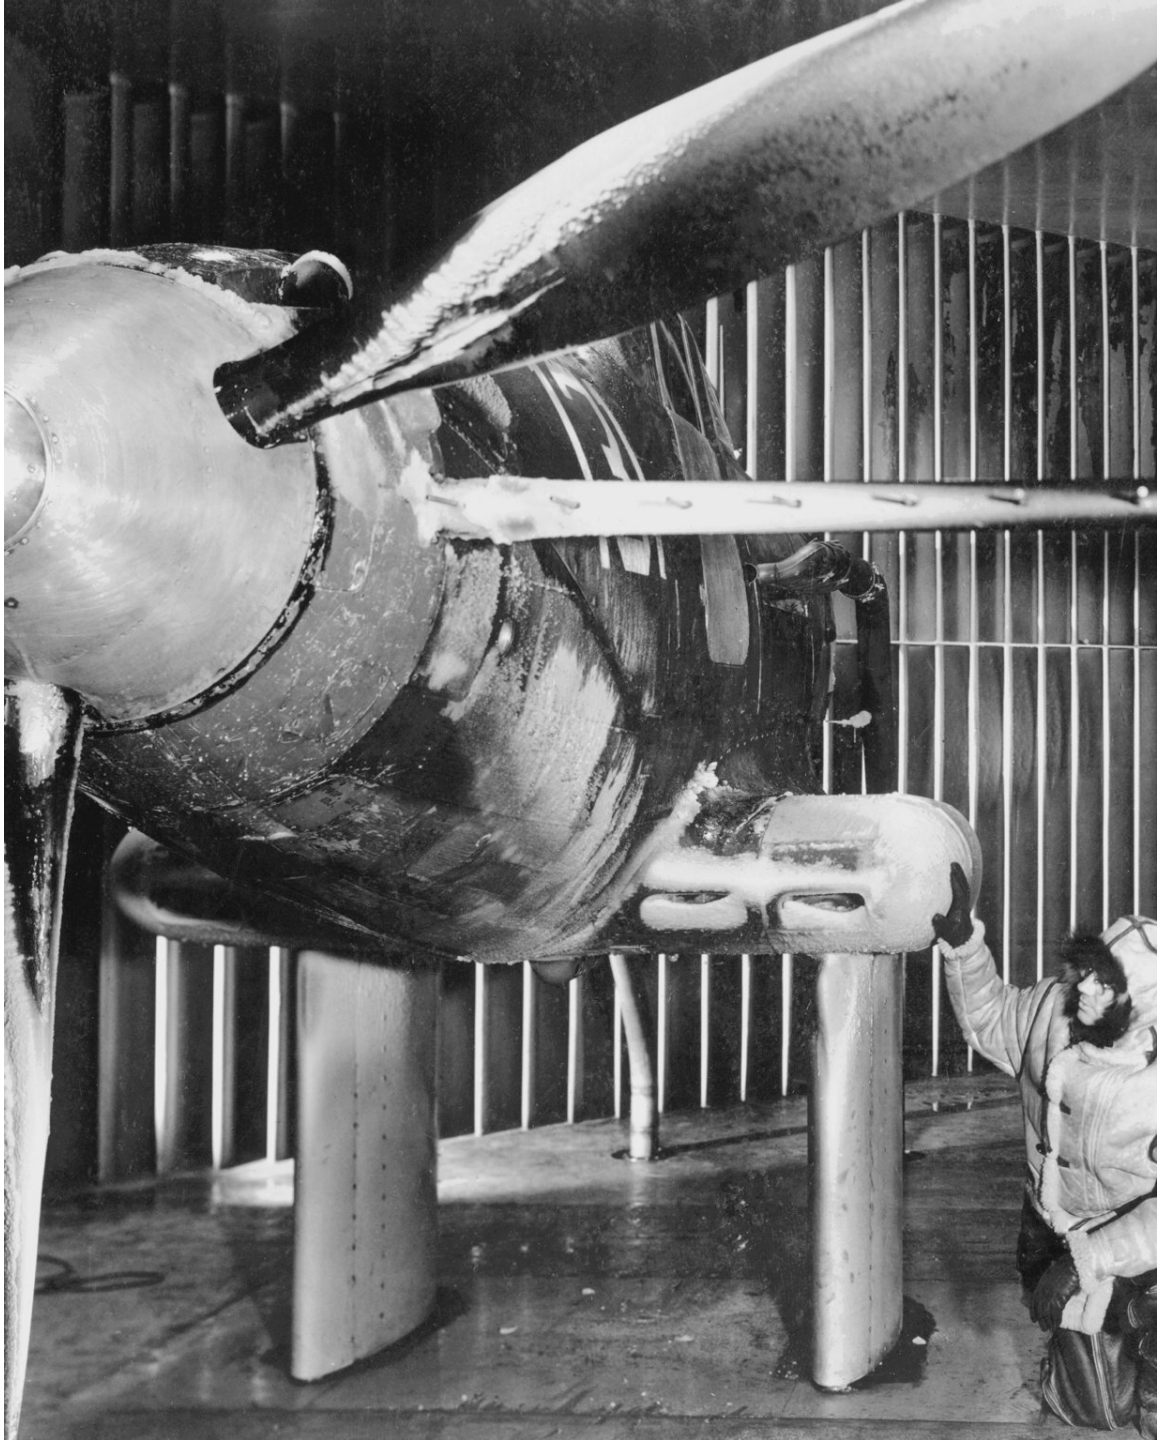
(Image credit: NASA).



(Image credit: Library of Congress).

(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).



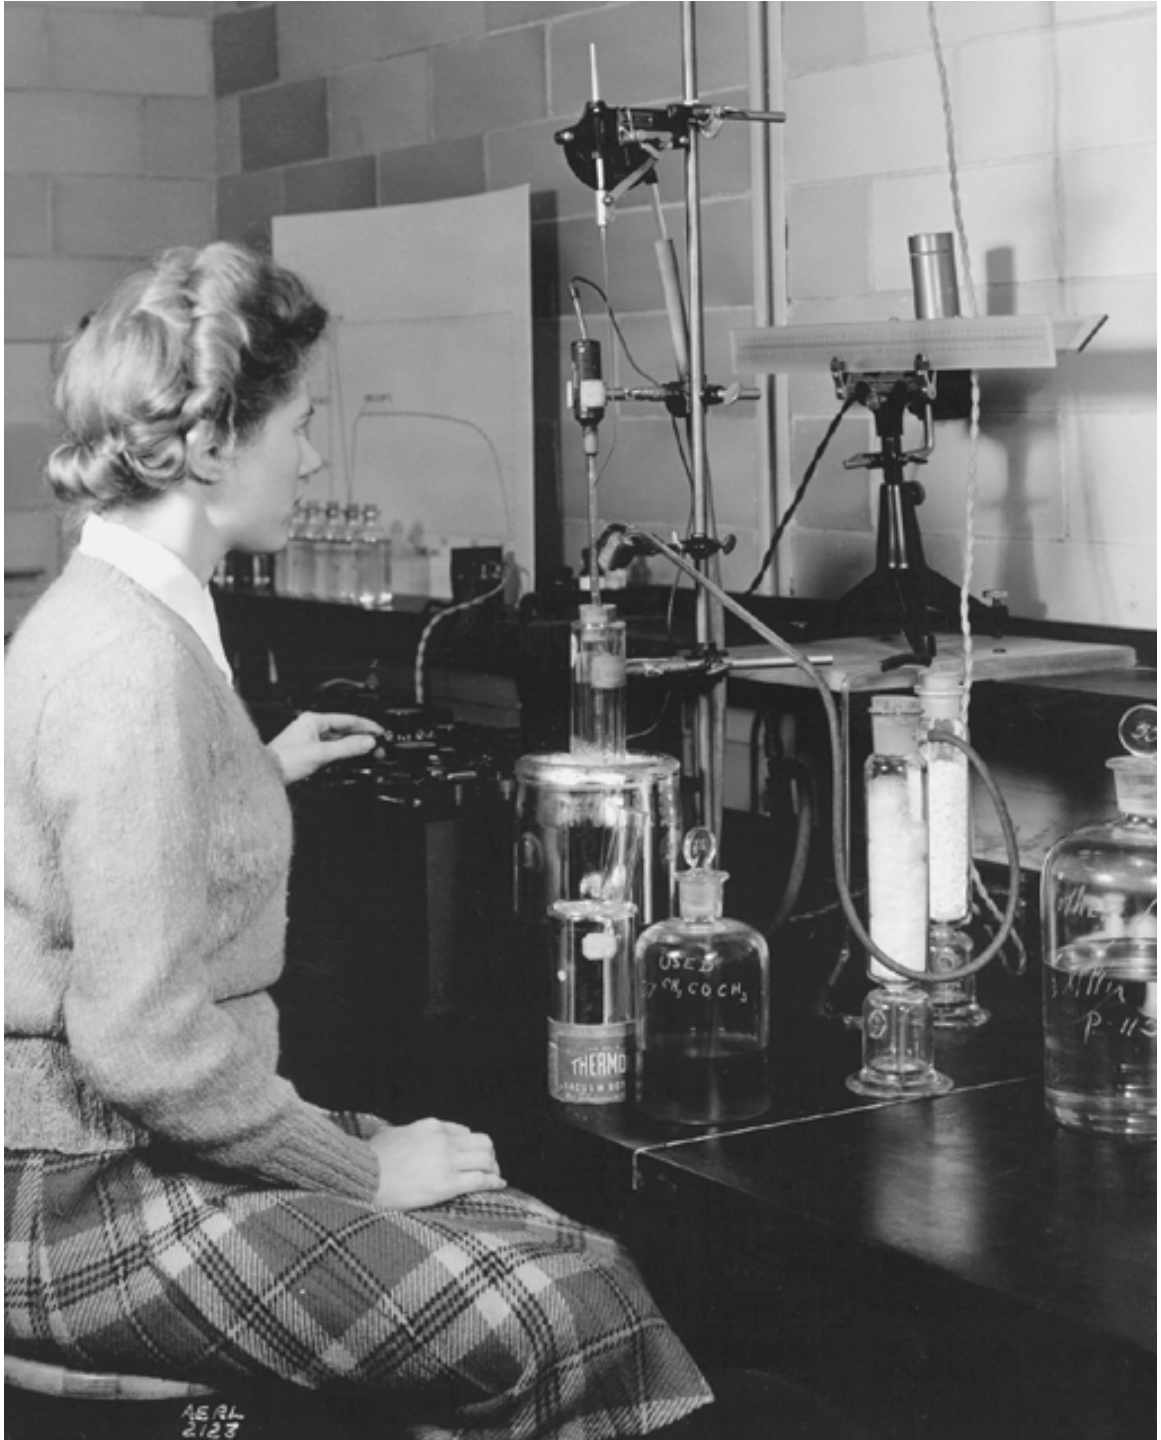
(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).

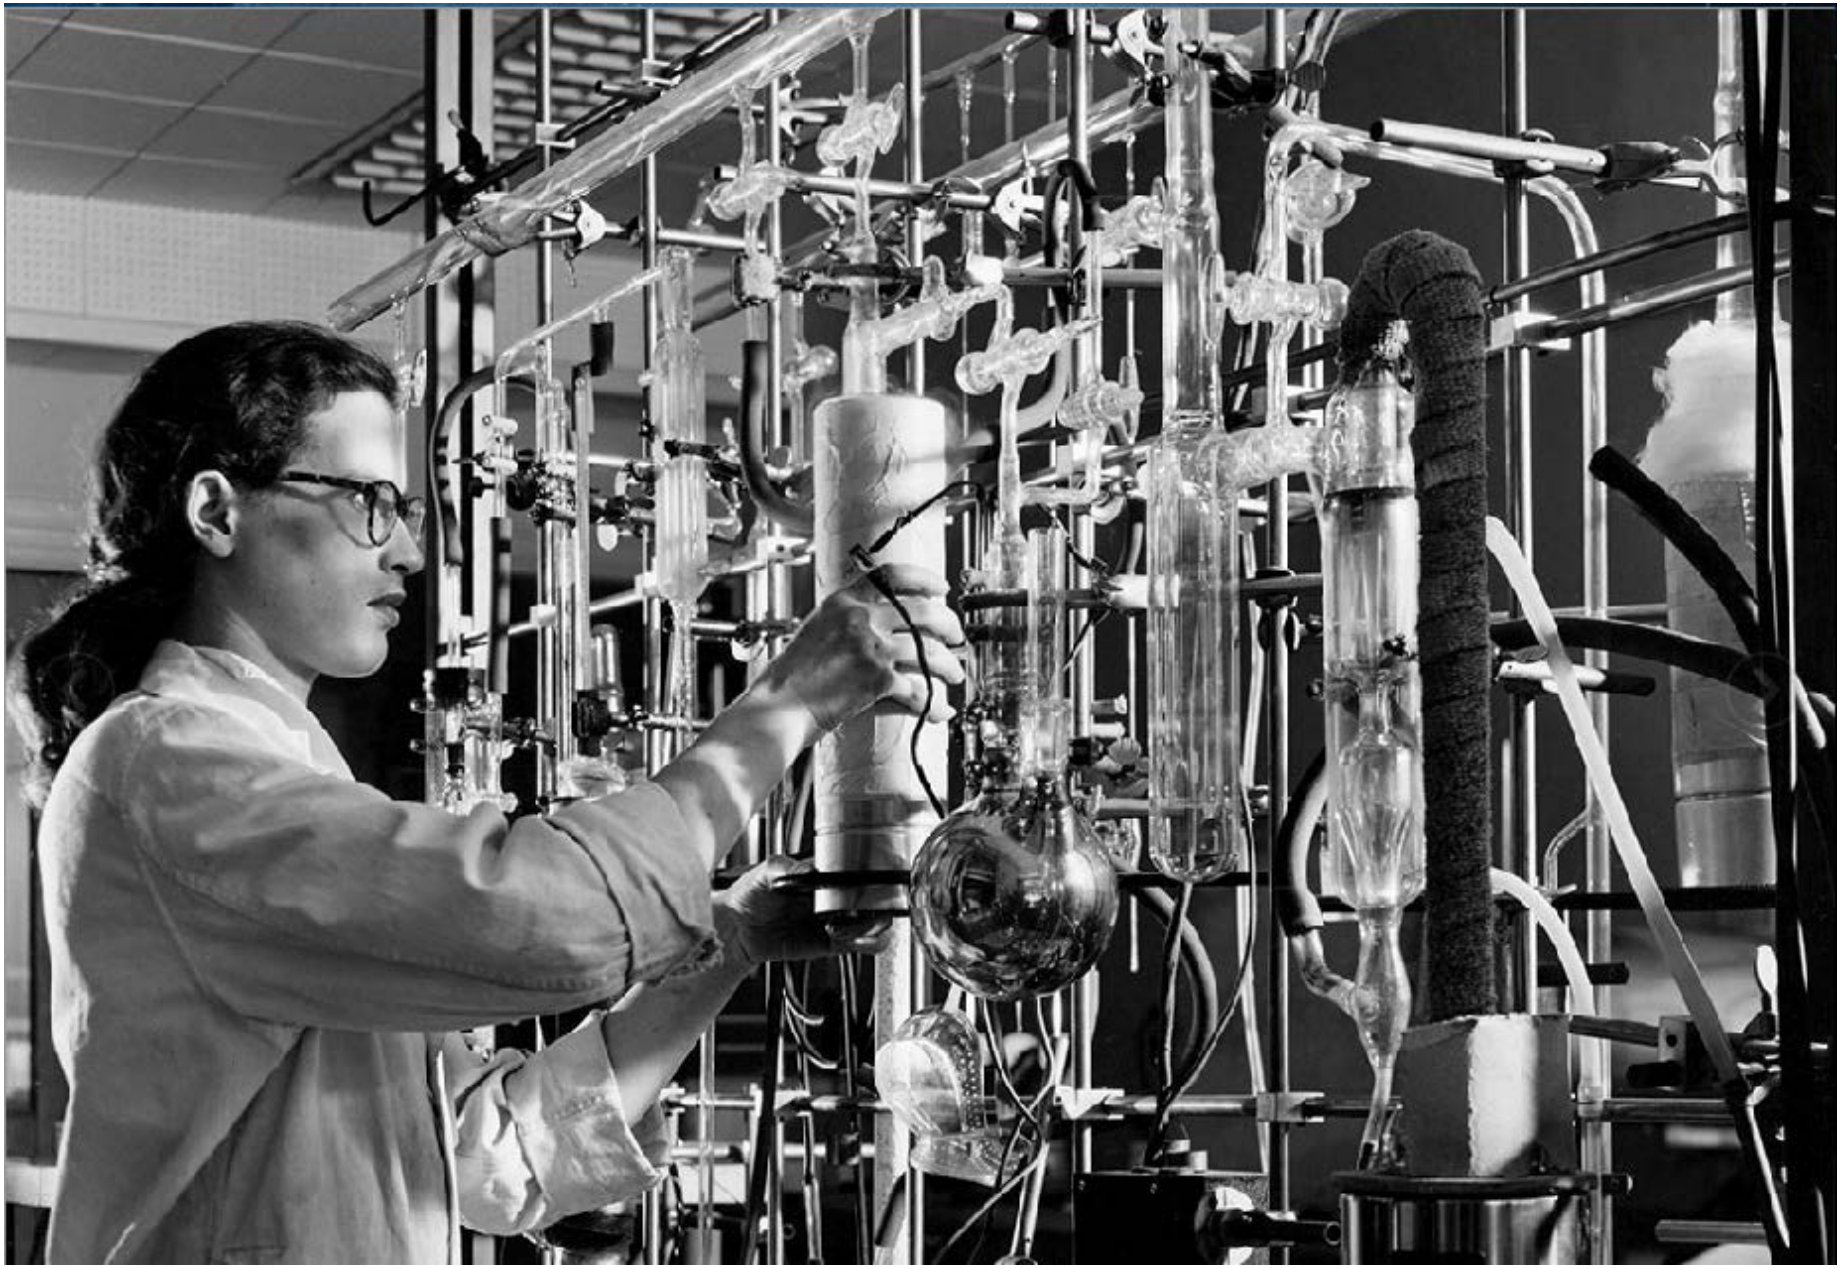
(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).



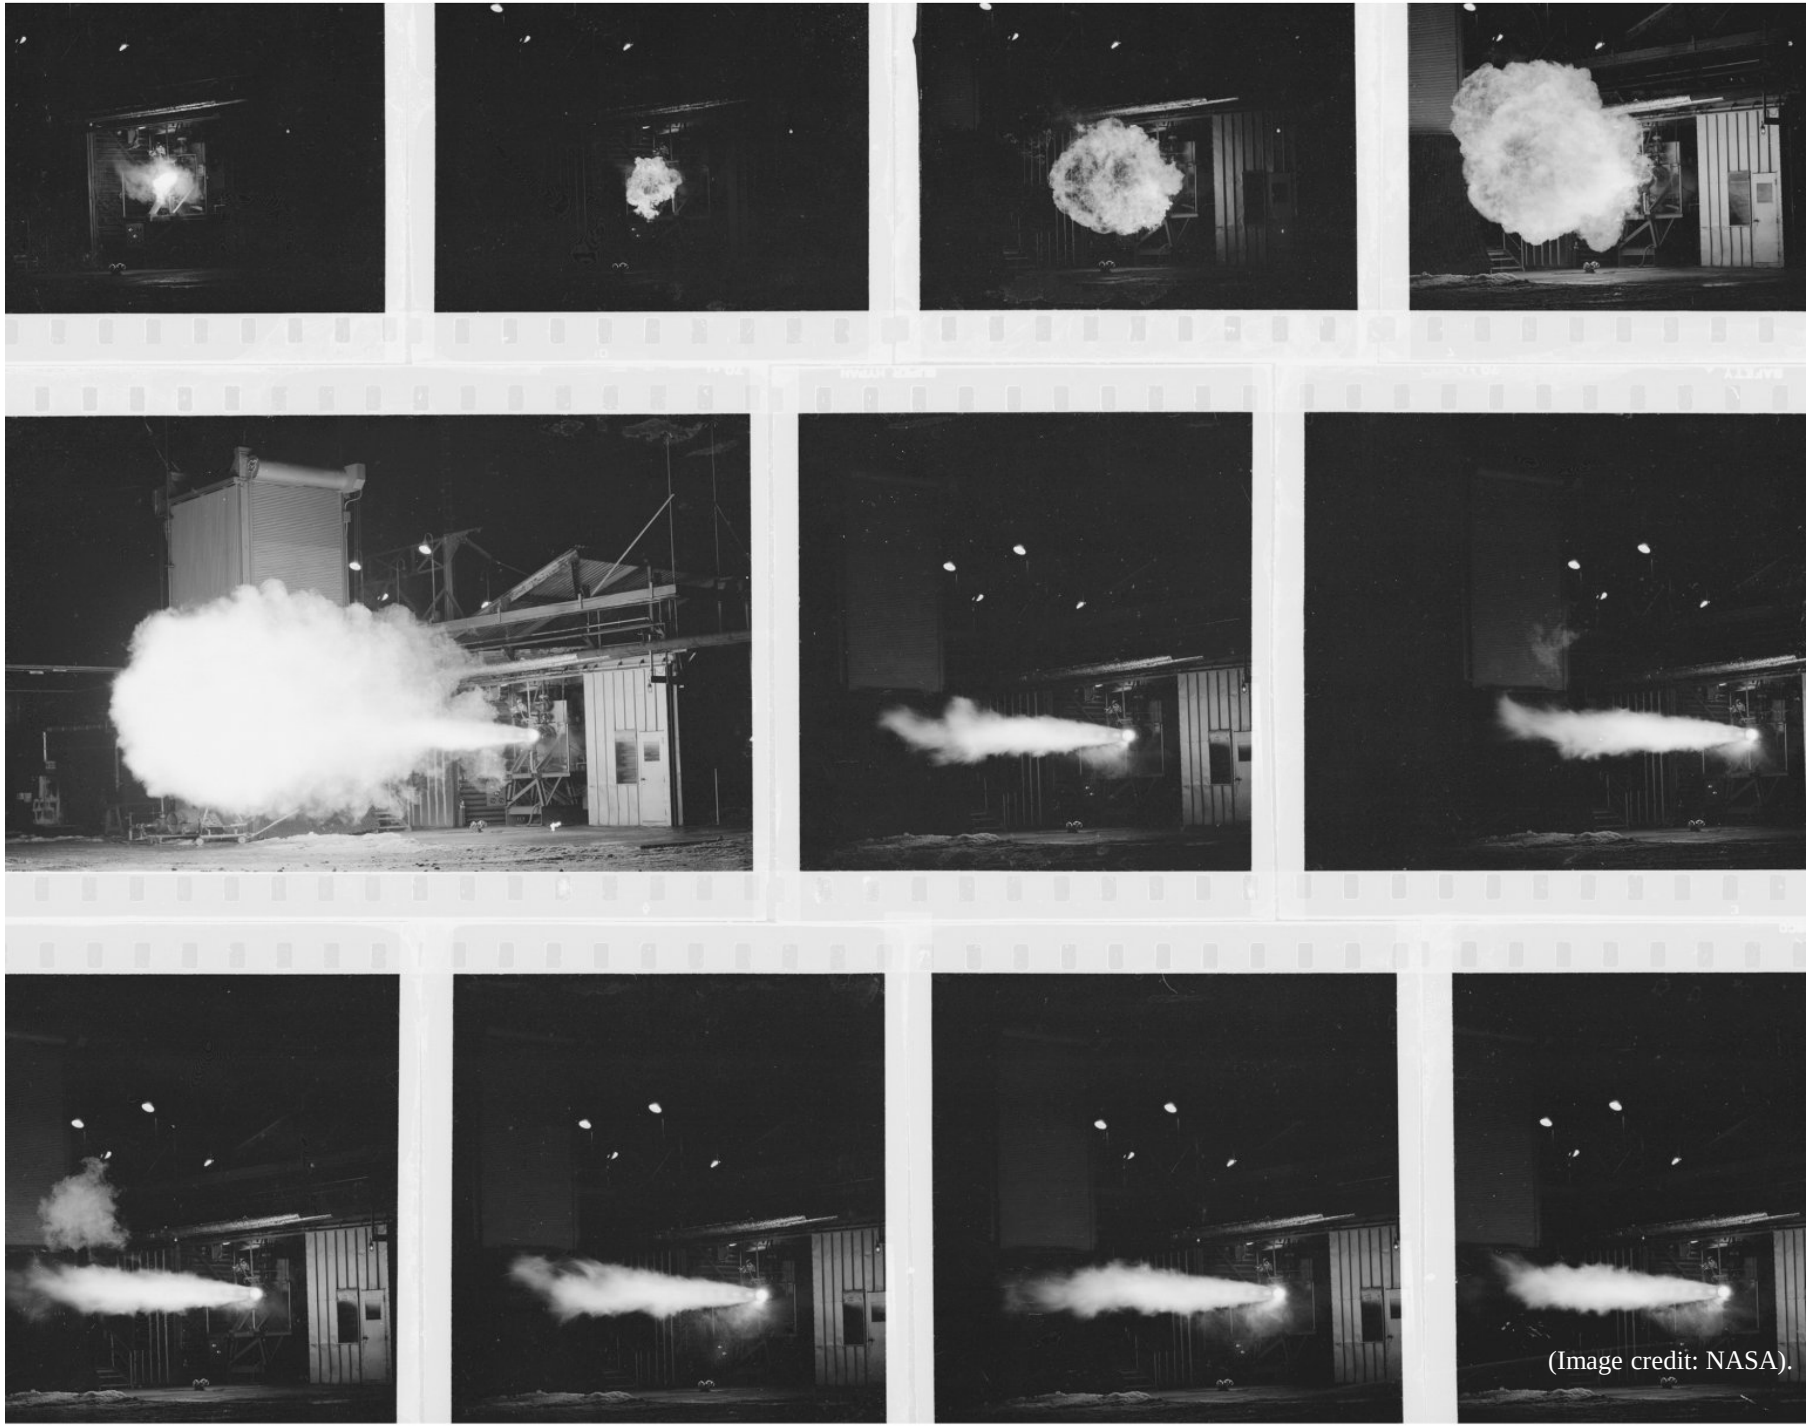
(Image credit: NASA).



(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).



(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA).

(Image credit: NASA

(Image credit: NASA)

(Image credit: NASA).