A Day in the Lunar Life of Callie

When Callie woke up that morning, she knew it was going to be a/an _______ day. She got out of bed and enjoyed some _______ and dehydrated _______. She put on her bright _______ uniform and prepared to go out on the lunar surface. Outside, she could see Earth, which looked like a/an _______ from her angle, and if she squinted, she thought she could see _______. She started on her task, which involved _______ a Moon rock to determine daily changes in the Moon’s environment. RT hovered _______ her, logging the information and _______ at the same time. After recording, she attempted to juggle _______ _______ rocks, but they were as difficult to catch as a slippery _______. Finally, she decided to _______ around the Moon and admire the _______ atmosphere she lives in.

The Moon reminds her of _______, sometimes, because of its plentiful _______. As she finally returned to the base, she thought about what a _______ day she’d had.