

NASA's Tracking and Data Relay Satellite (TDRS), uses radio waves to talk to astronauts on the International Space Station (ISS) and to send important information from space down to ground stations on Earth.