Task Background: The U.S. Army Aviation Development Directorate (ADD) manages and conducts the Army's aviation-related Science and Technology (S&T) activities as the aviation arm of the Aviation and Missile Research Development and Engineering Center (AMRDEC). The ADD mission is to lead the discovery, development and integration of Aviation technologies that transform Warfighter needs into capabilities. We accomplish this vital mission by empowering a distributed workforce of technical leaders to discover new technologies and approaches, develop advanced concepts, and demonstrate technical maturity and military usefulness, enabling the Army to deliver game changing Aviation capabilities to the battlefield. ADD's S&T portfolio supports both the current and future Army Aviation fleet. Although a large portion of our investment is focused on future fleet, most of our technology development will also help keep our existing fleet relevant and capable for years to come. The ADD Human-Systems Interface Technical Area researches and develops technologies to allow safe rotorcraft operations in degraded visual environments and develops symbology and interface concepts to reduce training time and workloads for both manned and unmanned operators.
